Public Library of Science (PLOS):

Breaking boundaries. Empowering researchers.
Opening Science

PLOS is a nonprofit, Open Access publisher empowering researchers to accelerate progress in science and medicine by leading a transformation in research communication. All PLOS journals adhere to the highest standards of rigorous peer review and research ethics.

Everything they publish is:

- Fully Open Access and compliant with major funder mandates including Plan S and OSTP
- Backed by our Open Data policy
- Supported by article-level-metrics to track the reach and influence of your work with precision
- Indexed widely by major services such as Crossref, Dimensions, DOAJ, Google Scholar, PubMed Central, Scopus, Web of Science, and many more
- Eligible for preprint-posting. And we offer specific preprint server integrations in relevant subject areas to make posting easy

Additionally, accepted articles are eligible for:

- Complementary research \(or “scooping”\) protection, ensuring that your study won't be rejected for novelty within six months of the publication of a related article
- Optional Published Peer Review History, so you can showcase the validity of your work and offer additional context for readers
- Covered by our press program, with over 400 press releases and 183,000 media mentions each year
- Visit PLoS website : <https://plos.org/>

Predatory Journals

Predatory journals, also known as fraudulent, deceptive, or pseudo-journals, present themselves as legitimate academic publications but engage in misleading practices. Typical predatory behaviors include falsely asserting that they offer peer review, concealing details about Article Processing Charges (APCs), misrepresenting their editorial board members, and committing various breaches of copyright and scholarly ethics.

Do look into the following resources for more information on Predatory Publishing and identifying such Publishers:
