Library Team wants you to know...

Library Team Wants You to Know that The Ashoka Centre for Translation at Ashoka University, in collaboration with the New India Foundation, has launched Bhashavaad, India's first non-profit, open-access, crowd-sourced database of Indian translations. Starting with over 14,000 entries, 6,500+ authors, and 7,000+ translators, the database aims to revitalize India's translation ecosystem, providing a valuable inventory of the country's literary and cultural identity. Bhashavaad strives to answer questions like what is and what is not being translated, who is publishing translations, who is translating, which languages are most active, what are the most translated language pairs, and many more besides the dynamics between languages, the communities that use them, and the regions they belong to.
